Scaling up for impact

In 2019, UNICEF annual procurement of goods and services for children reached a record $3.826 billion.

As one of the largest United Nations procurement agencies, UNICEF is uniquely positioned to leverage its reach, supply expertise and purchasing power to support governments across 150 countries to deliver results for children. Through its strategic procurement and influencing market approach, UNICEF achieves substantial savings for across a range of products. In 2019, we surpassed our target for the year by 35 per cent and achieved $363.3 million in savings for governments and donors.

Within these figures is a wide array of fit-for-purpose supplies and innovative approaches to deliver those supplies, at scale, to children. From education materials to therapeutic food, vaccines to medicines, soap to insecticide-treated mosquito nets – the supplies that support the health and well-being of children each have a unique story of scale up.

This year we highlight a range of examples of how UNICEF, in collaboration with governments, partners and the private sector, is scaling up to reach children around the world with the supplies they need, when they are needed.

Together, we:

Innovate and pioneer

UNICEF collaborates with industry and partners to drive the development of innovative products that meet specific needs and bring those products to market. From the redesign of High Performance Tents to incentivizing the development of rapid diagnostic tests for Zika, UNICEF is spearheading and scaling innovations to better serve children, young people and their families.

Innovations also extend to our approaches. With the support of donors, UNICEF has scaled up special financing mechanisms that support countries to overcome budgetary constraints and ensure the timely delivery of supplies to children.

Ambition to improve efficiencies is another 'behind the scenes' aspect of scaling up. A new mobile app for warehouse staff facilitates real time management of supplies and exemplifies how UNICEF is harnessing technology to improve operations.

Build and sustain

One of UNICEF's largest examples of scale up is reaching the world's children with the range of vaccines to protect against preventable diseases. Each individual vaccine requires a tailored strategy to align supply and demand, developed in close collaboration with manufactures and partners. Upgrading the cold chain infrastructure across tens of thousands of health care centres to safeguard these vaccines also demonstrates how collaborations are working at scale.

Prepare and respond

Core to the UNICEF mandate are preparedness measures, which are a critical to scaling up response in emergency situations, whether caused by natural disasters, conflict or disease outbreaks. This year's report includes a retrospective of how UNICEF has built on lessons learned following the 2014 Ebola epidemic in West Africa, to be better prepared to respond to health emergencies.

As 2020 unfolds, UNICEF is facing perhaps the greatest health emergency and scale up challenge in its history: to respond not only to the immediate needs of countries in their response to the COVID-19 pandemic, but also the secondary effects that the pandemic is having on nearly every aspect of children's lives.

Just as the needs of children change over time, the supplies and strategies to meet those needs must also shift and evolve. Drawing on our global footprint, technical expertise and convening power, UNICEF will continue to mobilize with agility and determination to deliver supplies for children.

Innovation at the heart of humanitarian response

UNICEF emergency tents are used during humanitarian responses to provide essential services in education, health, nutrition and child protection. UNICEF embarked on a co-creation process to develop new High Performance Tents, bringing manufacturers to laboratories and field locations. These experiences allowed the testing and improvement of prototypes, enabling the creation of a fit-for-purpose, multi-functional product for UNICEF programme implementation.

Tents have served UNICEF well for many years. The changing nature of humanitarian crises – including climate change and protracted emergencies – has posed new challenges to ensuring these spaces remain safe and secure. Extreme weather exposes tents to increasing risks of collapse and larger temperature variances, making it too hot or cold inside them. These environments can negatively affect a child's ability to fully benefit from the services being provided.

CO-CREATION WITH THE PRIVATE SECTOR

UNICEF explained its needs for a new type of tent to industry partners and identified more than 1,000 requirements, including resistance to extreme weather, improved indoor temperature, increased internal space and ease of transport and set up.

The co-creation approach involved UNICEF and different manufacturers collaborating through a trial-and-error process, where prototypes were developed and tested in labs.

This included a climatic wind tunnel where hurricane-strength winds and below-freezing temperatures were simulated to test durability, thermal performance and ventilation rates.

UNICEF took the prototypes and manufacturers to three field locations to understand how climate impacts different emergency contexts: Uganda was selected to represent hot and dry conditions, the Philippines for wet and humid conditions and Afghanistan for bitterly cold temperatures.

THE FINAL PRODUCT

The UNICEF High Performance Tents include a number of enhancements to improve efficiency and make life more comfortable for children in emergencies.

The innovations include:

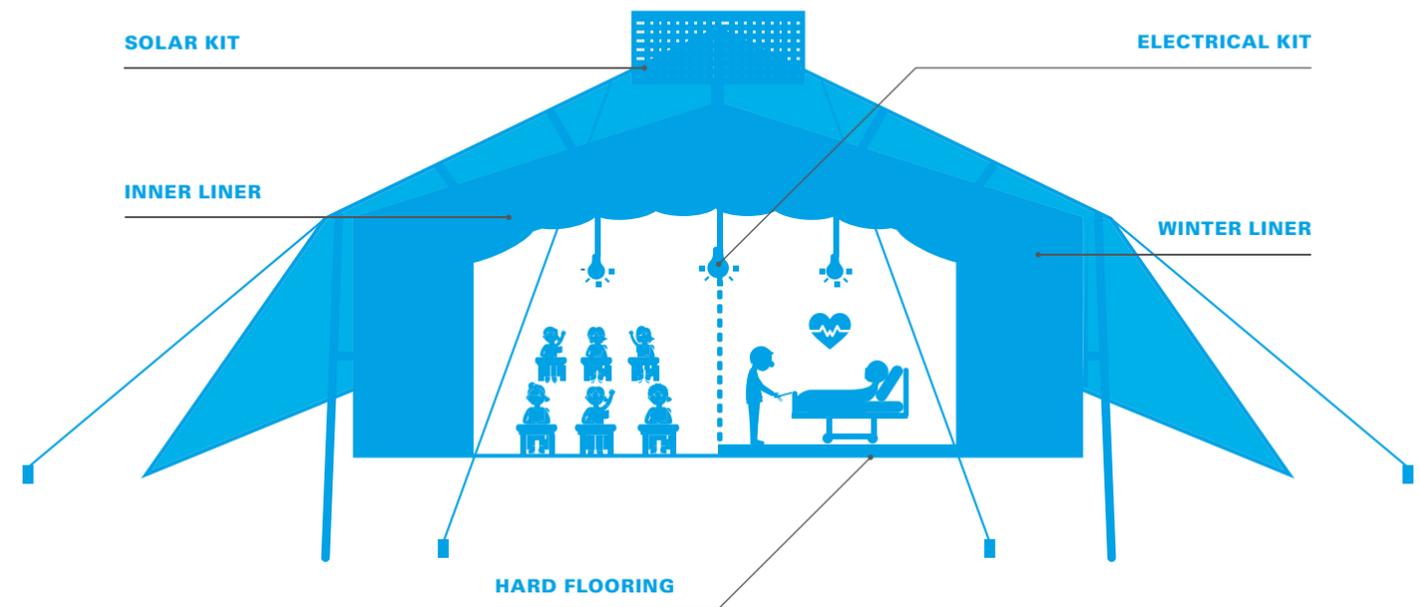

- A new anchoring system to keep the tent properly secured and improve durability to withstand extreme weather.

- A straight wall design to provide 20 per cent more usable floor space while keeping the same footprint as the existing tents.

- A three-layered window system made from a mosquito net, transparent sheet and full cover to improve lighting and ventilation, with an additional built-in shade net to help control the temperature inside the tent.

The High Performance Tents will have a significant impact on UNICEF work in humanitarian emergencies worldwide. In 2020, UNICEF will scale their distribution, whilst phasing out old tents.

With an average procurement of 4,650 multipurpose tents per year, the new tents will provide improved services to millions of emergency-affected children.

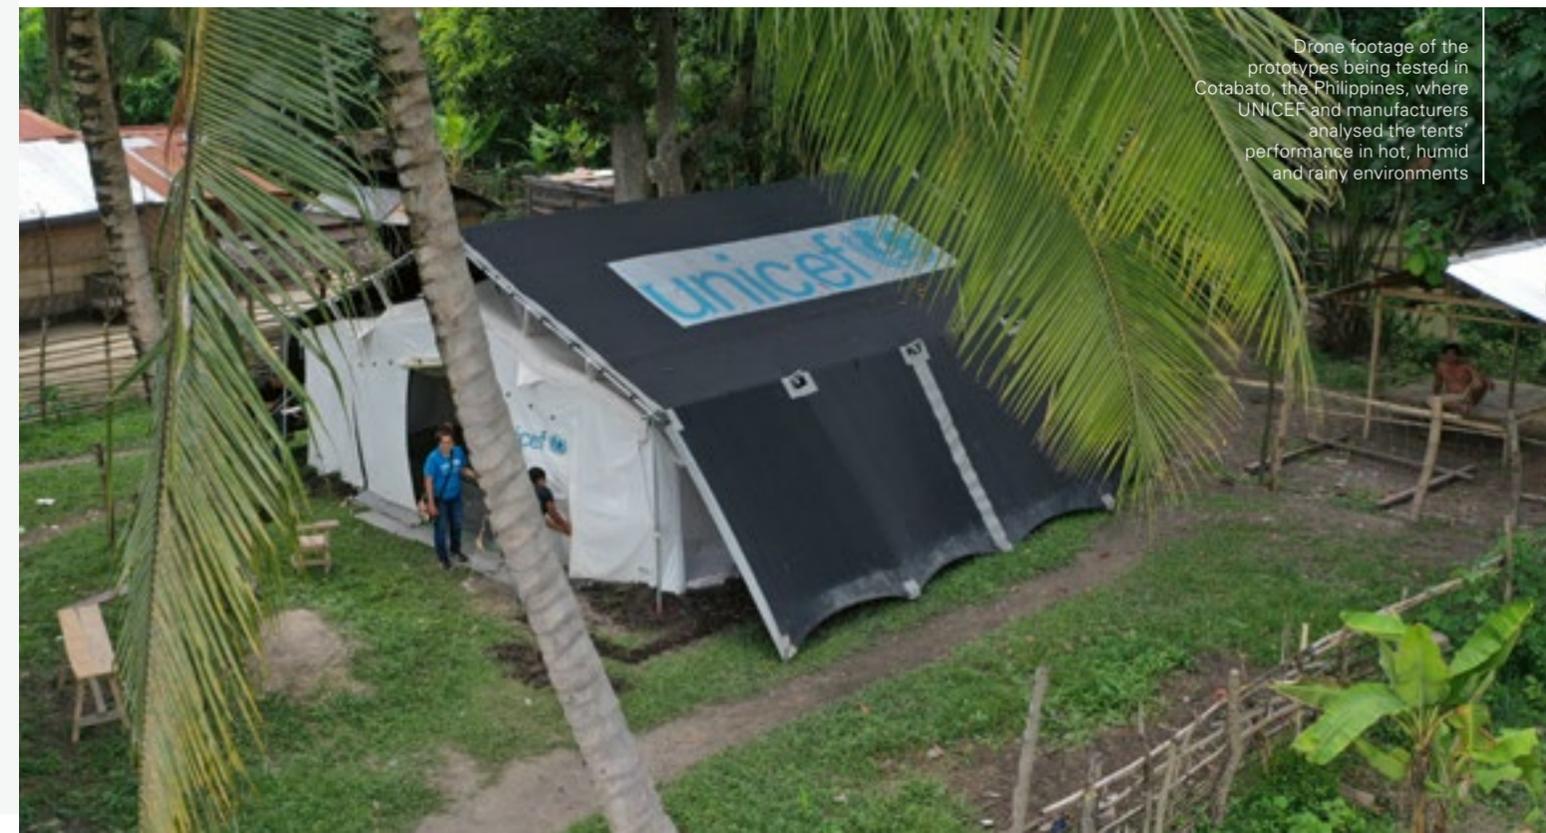

The UNICEF High Performance Tents can also be tailored and equipped with add-ons, including

- Solar and electrical kits to provide illumination and improve safety at night

- Hard flooring to provide safer, cleaner environments in muddy conditions

- A winter liner for cold climates

- An inner liner to create a more intimate feel for child friendly spaces

From ships to schools with local innovation

To build longer-lasting, quality learning centres for refugee children in Bangladesh, UNICEF turned to circular construction – the re-use, recycling and recovery of materials – identifying a solution steeped in local innovation, an approach that can be replicated in other countries and sectors.

Since 2017, the refugee camps in the Cox's Bazar district of Bangladesh have become home to almost one million Rohingya refugees from neighbouring Myanmar, just over half of whom are children. By December 2019, over 219,000 children aged 4 to 14 years were enrolled in 2,500 UNICEF-supported learning centres, which were initially housed in tents. These soon gave way to bamboo structures that are susceptible to fire and damage from monsoons and cyclones, requiring regular maintenance and leading to higher operational costs. More robust structures that could withstand the tests of time and nature without the need for frequent repair were needed.

The UNICEF Bangladesh Country Office looked for a viable local alternative and identified a construction technique that uses steel from end-of-life ships disposed in the Bay of Bengal as source material for the building. The recycled steel replaces the previously used non-durable materials and can be maintained by the population, making it environmentally and socially sustainable.

The key to the success of this solution is its modular concept whereby the different elements can be built off-site by one contractor and then quickly assembled in the refugee camp. This reduces the risks and hazards associated with the population density and restricted space in the camps.

The modular approach promotes efficient procurement through the establishment of long-term arrangements (LTAs), three of which were issued in 2019. The LTAs help introduce standards and regulations in the industry, serving as safeguards for workers to support safety guidelines and insurance.

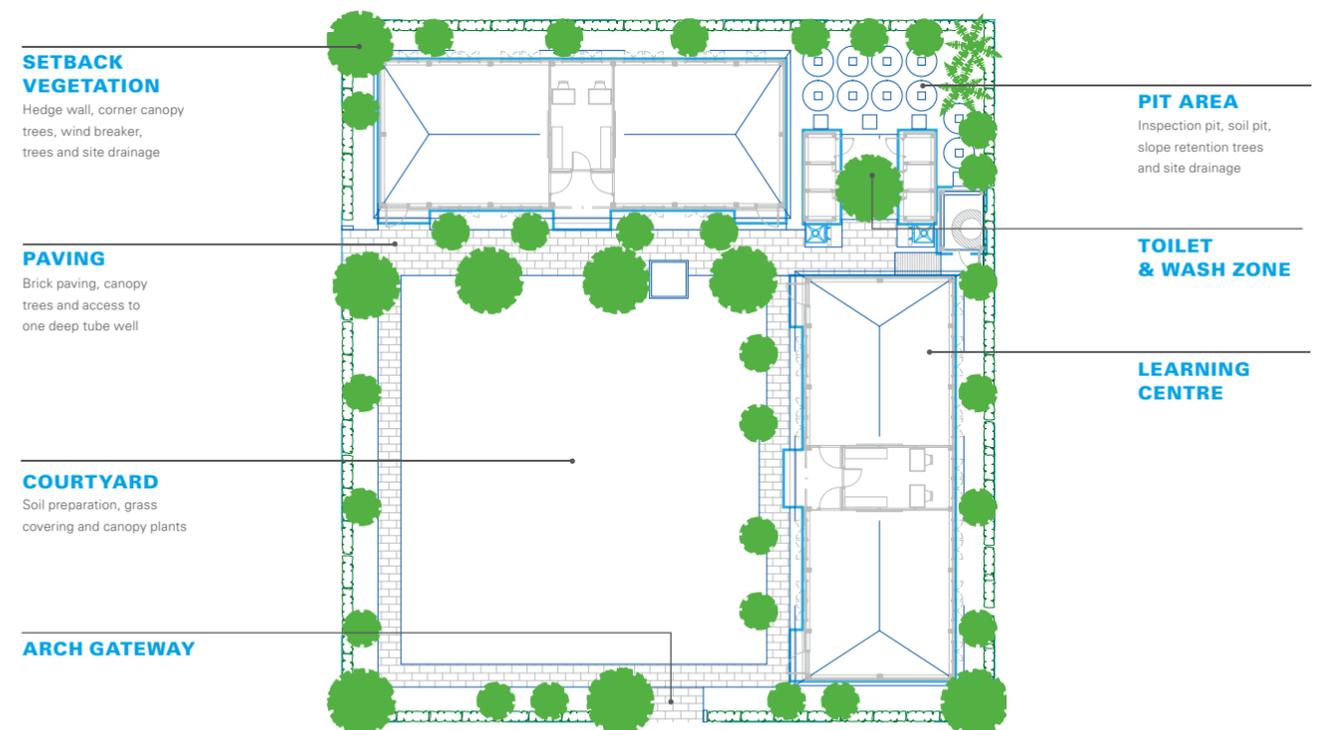

The steps taken in 2019 – identifying needs, approving designs and setting up LTAs – mean that swift action can be taken in 2020 to work on 3,300 new learning centres for refugee children in Cox's Bazar, giving them a safe and secure space where they can learn and play.

The impressive project will bring to scale a sustainable construction solution from local experience through recycling of obsolete material. This exemplifies a sensible approach that can be replicated in other sectors and countries.

Warehouse in a pocket app scales up to improve supply chain efficiency

The Mobile Warehouse and Inventory Management Solution (mWIMS) smartphone app has transformed warehouse transactions from paper to digital. The new app uses real-time data to facilitate a faster delivery and improved management of critical supplies like medicines, clean water tablets, mosquito nets and nutritional supplements.

A new technology is improving logistics in UNICEF warehouses worldwide. The smartphone app mWIMS brings warehouse operations into a digital and user-friendly system, representing a technological breakthrough for the supply sector.

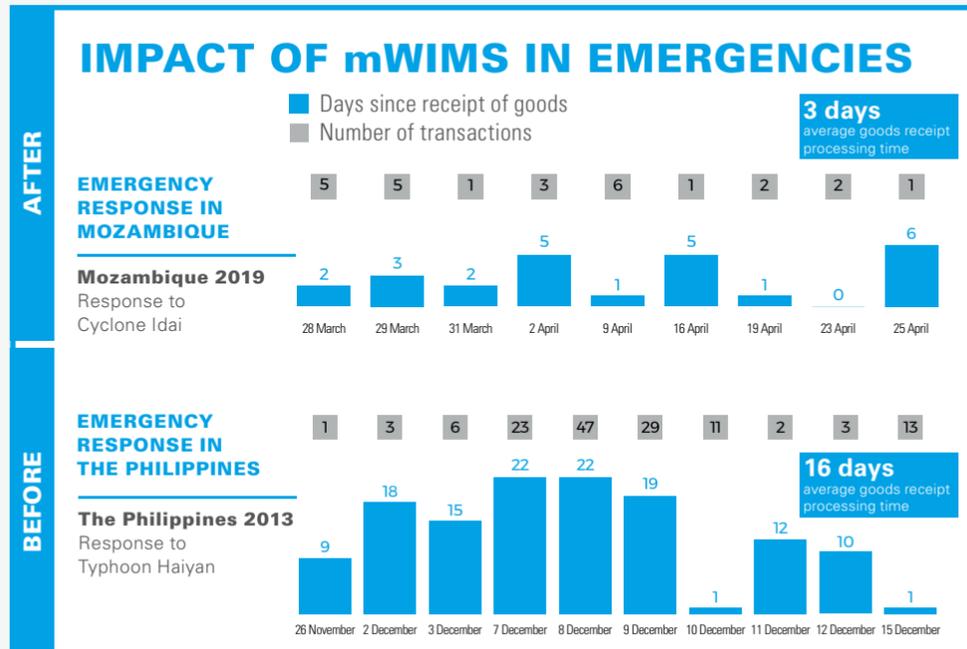

The app includes nine different functions that track warehouse inventory, shipments and deliveries. While staff move items in a warehouse, they can timely record each transaction into the app, which is immediately sent back to the UNICEF internal management system. This happens instantaneously and more accurately, as it cuts out the manual and paper-based process. As a result, the average time saved in 2019 due to the mobile tool was more than 30 per cent, in addition to improving the traceability and reliability of supply chain information.

The impact on emergency responses has been tremendous. For example, whereas in 2013 during the humanitarian response to Typhoon Haiyan in the Philippines it took an average of 16 days to record the receipt of goods in the warehouse, in 2019 during the response to Mozambique's Cyclone Idai it only took an average of 3 days while using mWIMS.

After its launch in late 2018, mWIMS was scaled to 54 warehouses in 23 countries, almost a third of all UNICEF warehouses around the world. Expansion plans to additional countries continue in 2020 as UNICEF aims to have all its warehouses supported by this app. Taken to scale, the mobile solution reduces the risk of loss, obsolescence, shrinkage and control point errors, while increasing inventory accuracy and timeliness of inventory data across UNICEF warehouses worldwide. This results in a stronger, more efficient, agile and transparent supply chain that can better respond to the needs of children, especially in emergencies.

Scaling vaccine procurement in an evolving landscape of supply and demand

Few public health commodities can compare with the scale and impact of vaccines, which have contributed to dramatic reductions in mortality and morbidity among children worldwide. Bringing a vaccine to scale across countries is complex, requiring a tailored strategic approach to align supply availability with demand.

Each year, UNICEF supplies over two billion doses of vaccines, to reach approximately 45 per cent of the world's children under five years of age. This annual investment, totaling $1.656 billion in 2019, supports routine immunization programmes, preventive campaigns and outbreak response around the world.

Over the past few decades, the vaccine landscape has seen many changes, as new vaccine technologies became available and as countries expanded their national immunization programmes. As of 2019, UNICEF procures 25 different vaccines on behalf of nearly 100 countries.

Each vaccine has its own unique supply and demand complexities, requiring tailored strategic procurement and agile supply management to address any unexpected changes in supply and demand. For all vaccines, close collaboration among governments, global partners and manufacturers is critical to ensure there is a reliable supply of quality, affordable vaccines. UNICEF and global partners, such as GAVI, the Vaccine Alliance, work in close collaboration to address vaccine supply challenges, faced by countries and to calibrate supply and demand.

UNICEF regularly engages with vaccine industry representatives, including via an annual Vaccine Industry Consultation (VIC), to discuss strategic direction, understand challenges and review market perspectives. The 2019 VIC had record-breaking attendance, with 27 manufacturers currently supplying or intending to supply vaccines through UNICEF.

UNICEF also works directly with governments and other global partners to assess their vaccine requirements through an annual forecasting exercise, which informs procurement and shipment plans to ensure there is sufficient supply of vaccines in-country to meet immunization coverage goals.

Peer-to-peer dialogue is also important to share best practices and lessons learned in securing access to vaccine supply. UNICEF established the Vaccine Procurement Practitioners Exchange Forum (VPPEF) as a resource for procurement practitioners supporting national immunization programmes. It focuses on providing support and information for middle-income countries facing challenges in accessing vaccine supply at affordable prices.

The vaccine landscape will continue to shift and evolve as technologies improve, as new manufacturers enter the market and as countries expand their national immunization programmes. UNICEF will continue to work in collaboration with governments and partners to address the supply and demand complexities and to meet the goal of fully immunizing every child.

CASE STUDY

IPV: the fastest introduction and scale up of a vaccine ever, but not without challenges

In an effort to accelerate the global eradication of polio and help prevent a resurgence of the disease, WHO recommended in 2013 that all countries introduce at least one dose of inactivated polio vaccine (IPV) into routine immunization schedules by the end of 2015. At the time, 126 countries were using only oral polio vaccine (OPV). By the end of 2015, most of these countries had either introduced IPV into their programmes or had developed plans for its introduction. However, supply availability did not keep pace with the demand. Despite assurances that they would be able to meet the requirements, the two manufacturers awarded the supply contracts were able to produce only about half of the quantities needed due to unforeseen difficulties in scaling up bulk productions. To address these challenges UNICEF, in collaboration with governments, WHO and other partners, put various measures in place to maximize the limited supply. For example, IPV vials equipped with Vaccine Vial Monitors (VVM) were approved for use for up to 28 days after opening, rather than within six hours, decreasing wastage. Another strategy to maximize the limited supply was to apply a fractional dose schedule. Under normal circumstances, each five-dose vial was used to immunize five children. To maximize the limited supply, it was assessed that one child could be immunized with two separate 'fractional' doses, which meant that one vial could immunize 12 children. The IPV shortages continued until 2019, when enough supply became available to meet country demand. By April 2019, all 126 countries had introduced IPV. Thanks to collaboration among vaccine stakeholders to overcome these supply challenges, IPV is considered to be the fastest ever introduction and scale up of a new vaccine. Challenges are expected to continue and the industry will need further scaling up to meet increased demand in 2020.

Strengthening domestic resources to deliver life-saving commodities

As countries transition away from donor funding to their own domestic sources of financing, a tool known as pre-financing is supporting countries to deliver supplies on time to tens of millions of children each year. Its unique role also serves as an entry point for strengthening health systems.

The Vaccine Independence Initiative (VII) is a pre-financing tool managed by UNICEF, offering a support mechanism for countries utilizing their own domestic resources for procurement of health-related supplies. The tool helps countries bridge temporary short-term funding gaps, which might otherwise lead to supply shortages and stock-outs.

The flexible credit terms of the VII allow governments to pay after delivery, as opposed to the UNICEF standard advance payment requirement. For example, if a country has planned and budgeted for a commodity but is experiencing temporary cash flow delays, the VII can allow the procurement to proceed, accelerating the availability of supplies by at least four to six months.

The size of the fund has been scaled up over time – quadrupling from $8.9 million in 2015 to $35 million in 2019. Originally focused on vaccines, the VII has evolved to meet demand and now also supports procurement of other commodities such as medicines, bed nets, nutrition products and cold chain equipment. By 2019, the VII support to countries had increased tenfold, compared to the 2012–2014 period. Looking forward, UNICEF anticipates further growth of pre-financing support to more than $200 million per year.

Tens of millions of children benefit from VII support to countries each year. Between 2015 and 2019, the VII facilitated the on-time delivery of 565 million doses of vaccines, 100,000 cartons of ready-to-use therapeutic foods and nearly 400,000 packs of antiretroviral drugs (ARVs).

The long-term vision for VII is that participating countries ‘graduate out’ from VII support. However, in the next five-year period, an increased demand for VII support is expected, especially as governments move forward on their commitments to meet the Sustainable Development Goals and scale up domestic financing.

SPOTLIGHT ON THE CONGO

In 2019 the Government of the Congo became a formal subscriber to the VII to facilitate the procurement of medicines and health products for children, and to help address the downward trend in immunization coverage. With the VII support, the country carried out an immunization campaign in March 2019, during which 2.4 million children were vaccinated against measles and rubella, achieving 97 per cent of the national target. The Government also used the campaign as a platform to provide Vitamin A and deworming tablets to children. Thanks to on-time procurement of vaccines for this campaign and other routine immunization services, VII helped increase the country’s national immunization coverage. For example, coverage of diphtheria-tetanus-pertussis (DTP3) increased from 69 per cent in 2017 to over 79 per cent at the end of 2019. The Congo also used the VII mechanism to procure other essential health commodities, including antimalarial and ARV medicines. Following three consecutive years of supply shortages, VII made it possible to purchase a six-month stock of ARV drugs for nearly 27,000 patients, as well as HIV tests to support the relaunch of the country’s Prevention of Mother-to-Child Transmission of HIV programmes. The country also acquired diagnostic tests and treatment for 100,000 malaria cases. With the supplies and programmes securely in place, the Ministry of Health met its goal of providing free access to vaccination and treatment for HIV and malaria.

A woman and child at an integrated health centre in the Mouyondzi District of the Bouenza Region of the Congo

Keeping vaccines safe through the last mile of their journey

Reliable cold chains are essential to reaching children with life-saving vaccines. A large scale, multi-country effort is underway to upgrade cold chain equipment in health facilities to ensure that vaccines remain safe and effective throughout their journey – from manufacturer to child.

A vaccine's journey through the supply chain is complex. Because most vaccines are sensitive to heat or light, they must be transported and stored under correct conditions to maintain their quality and potency. This requires robust and reliable cold chain equipment. Although cold chain equipment for the purposes of vaccine storage has existed for decades, the equipment standards in countries did not match the pace of vaccine development and availability. Furthermore, older technologies had issues, such as poor temperature control that risked wastage if vaccines were exposed to temperature fluctuations.

As part of a strategy to strengthen vaccine supply chains and achieve better immunization equity and coverage, in 2015, Gavi the Vaccine Alliance, UNICEF and other partners launched the Cold Chain Equipment Optimization Platform (CCEOP) – a $400 million, five-year project to upgrade existing cold chain equipment in 56 countries by 2021. Strengthening cold chains in country also supports agile vaccine response efforts for infectious disease outbreaks, including the COVID-19 vaccine when it becomes available.

Across the eligible countries and ensuring that they are properly installed and maintained presented a considerable challenge. It also presented a unique opportunity to move forward with innovations in both equipment and approach.

Newer technologies have included solar powered units to replace gas or battery powered refrigeration systems. Solar technology was aspirational when introduced 10 years ago but is now the standard. Similarly, remote temperature monitoring systems have been introduced and tested at scale to provide information on location and temperature status to guide repair and maintenance planning.

The CCEOP has also introduced and scaled up a service bundle concept. Under this approach, manufacturers provide the equipment and manage in-country logistics, installation and training of staff. The concept has proven efficient in ensuring quick installation and staff training of the needed equipment.

UNICEF and partners have worked closely with countries to highlight the advantages of investing in the new and improved cold chain equipment. By the end of 2019, over 20,000 units had been installed in health centres, with nearly 20,000 additional units in process of delivery.

Building on early lessons learned, cold chain equipment is not a one-size-fits-all approach. The CCEOP implemented measures give countries the flexibility to determine the best fit for their context.

By investing in new cold chain equipment, countries can ultimately save money over the average 10-year lifespan of the equipment, and safeguard vaccines for routine immunization programmes through the last mile of their journey.

Worldwide CCEOP Procurement

The CCEOP is addressing critical gaps in the cold chain, with 50 countries already approved, representing 65,000 units by end of 2019.

Improving nutrition supply chains for children

Malnutrition is both preventable and treatable; however, supply chain inefficiencies may hinder access to the therapeutic food needed to treat severe cases. The Supply Chain Maturity Scorecard is a simple tool that can help identify gaps and target investments to strengthen supply chains.

In the Central African Republic (CAR), years of conflict and displacement of populations have created a crisis for children. Acute food insecurity has led to increasing rates of malnutrition among children. In 2019, more than 43,000 children under five years of age were projected to suffer from severe acute malnutrition (SAM), a life-threatening condition requiring urgent treatment.

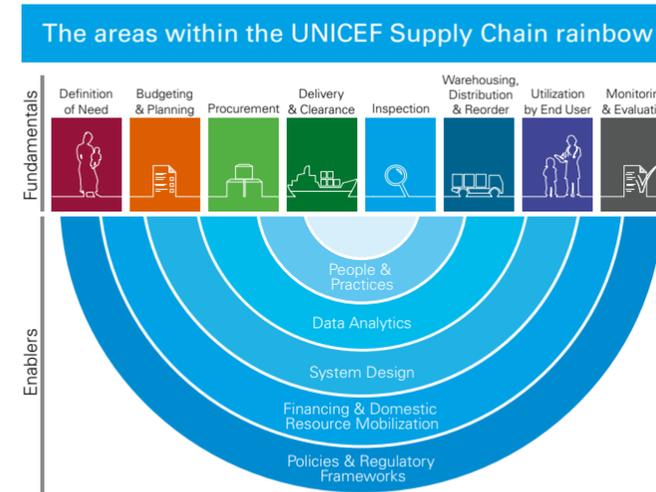

With the nutrition crisis in CAR escalating, ensuring that children had access to ready-to-use therapeutic food (RUTF) – a primary treatment for children with SAM – was critical. However, there were gaps in availability of RUTF at health facilities. End user monitoring assessments indicated that stock-out management was one of the main challenges to ensuring continued availability of RUTF.

To better understand why the stock-outs were occurring, UNICEF supported the Government of CAR to undertake a USAID Food for Peace-funded review using the tool known as the Supply Chain Maturity Scorecard.

Developed by UNICEF in 2018, the Supply Chain Maturity Scorecard assesses the maturity level of a country's supply chain and helps measure progress and target investments. The tool provides a comprehensive approach to address issues affecting supply chain performance, by monitoring and tracking fundamentals – the main operation elements – such as procurement, budgeting and planning; and the enablers, such as policy and system design. As of 2019, UNICEF has supported 21 countries to undertake this supply chain assessment in different areas such as essential medicines, immunization and nutrition.

In CAR, the Maturity Scorecard helped to determine that a main reason for the stock-outs was the inefficient flow of stocks from the national to the health facility level. The Government of CAR, together with UNICEF and other supply chain stakeholders, established a comprehensive roadmap to address these barriers, such as strengthening warehouse capacity and transportation mechanisms.

UNICEF supported the implementation of the Government-led plan by leveraging the momentum created around the nationally-led roadmap to advocate for funding and match the national supply chain needs identified by the Supply Chain Maturity Model with resources. Once put in place, these targeted and coordinated supply chain strengthening efforts had a significant impact on expanding the distribution coverage and accessibility of RUTF products at the last mile.

RESPONDING TO EMERGENCIES

UNICEF on the front lines

In any humanitarian crisis, children pay the heaviest price. Reaching them with the right supplies is at the heart of the UNICEF emergency response. In 2019, the UNICEF emergency supply and logistics operations spanned 58 countries and reached a global procurement value of $346.1 million.

While 2019 marked the 30th anniversary of the landmark Convention on the Rights of the Child and the 70th anniversary of the Geneva Conventions, over 30 million children remained displaced by internal and international conflicts. UNICEF immunization, nutrition, water and sanitation and education supplies reached displaced children throughout the year.

The scale of the UNICEF supply response increases with the longevity and severity of conflicts. With no resolution in sight to the Rohingya refugee crisis in 2019, UNICEF identified a construction solution to build longer-lasting, higher-quality learning centres for displaced children in Cox's Bazar, Bangladesh. Similarly, in Yemen, the world's largest humanitarian crisis, UNICEF assessed growing construction needs and devised a strategic execution plan to bring them to scale.

UNICEF meets operational challenges with preparedness plans. When Cyclones Idai and Kenneth tore through Mozambique and the surrounding region UNICEF was quick to mobilize its largest deployment of the year. Relying on its dry season prepositioning plan, UNICEF circumvents infrastructure challenges and a six-month rainy season in South Sudan to reach children and families with essential supplies.

Working with governments, partners, suppliers and local communities, UNICEF oversees an extensive emergency response, sending supplies to the hardest to reach areas.

BOLIVARIAN REPUBLIC OF VENEZUELA MIGRATION CRISIS

In 2019, UNICEF reinforced its three field offices in the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela to support a rapid expansion of service delivery, including large scale procurement. To help children in a deepening socio-economic context, UNICEF worked closely with national authorities and local partners to deliver critical supplies such as vaccines, medical equipment, nutrition products and educational kits.

THE DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC OF THE CONGO AND THE SURROUNDING REGION

The humanitarian crisis in the Democratic Republic of the Congo is multi-faceted. Severe food insecurity was compounded by disease outbreaks and recurrent armed conflicts. In 2019, a nationwide measles epidemic was declared, 17,000 cases of cholera were recorded, and the country's 10th Ebola outbreak that started in August 2018 became the country's largest. UNICEF continued to send water and sanitation supplies, medical kits and vaccines.

MOZAMBIQUE AND THE SURROUNDING REGION

Southern Africa witnessed one of its worst natural disasters in March, when Cyclone Idai tore through Mozambique, Malawi and Zimbabwe. Six weeks later, Cyclone Kenneth followed, becoming the strongest cyclone to ever hit the African continent. The intense cyclones left severe flooding in their wake. UNICEF responded with 8 charter flights of supplies and 12 international deployments or the equivalent of 510 days, the biggest in 2019. The emergency response included cholera prevention and treatment efforts and the reestablishment of primary healthcare services to avoid outbreaks of water-borne and other communicable diseases. Supplies were distributed through partners on the ground to reach communities in Sofala, Manica, Zambezia and Cabo Delgado provinces (see page 36).

THE SYRIAN ARAB REPUBLIC AND THE SURROUNDING REGION

By 2019, the conflict in Syria had displaced 6 million people and driven another 5 million into the neighbouring countries of Jordan, Lebanon and Turkey. UNICEF continued to support children, almost half of the affected population, with immunization, winterization and education supplies.

CAMEROON

The number of regions affected by the humanitarian crisis in Cameroon doubled to eight in 2019, from an initial four at the start of the conflict in 2017. Children were at a heightened risk of disruption of vaccination activities and primary health care services. Despite humanitarian access being very limited, UNICEF provided $17 million in emergency supplies, including $11 million worth of vaccines and biologicals.

YEMEN

Five years of conflict in Yemen have taken a toll on nearly the entire country's population, including 12 million children. Perpetual attacks and a high rate of internal displacement have compromised water networks, health facilities, schools and other infrastructure. Enormous construction needs and timely donations have resulted in the steep increase of construction value in 2019, requiring UNICEF to devise a new strategic execution plan to help scale its supply response in the world's largest humanitarian crisis (see page 39).

THE CENTRAL AFRICAN REPUBLIC

Despite the signing of a peace agreement in early 2019, violence and destruction have not ceased in the Central African Republic. To support the 1 million children still in need of humanitarian assistance, UNICEF continued to send vaccines, field equipment and water, sanitation and hygiene (WASH) supplies.

SOUTH SUDAN

South Sudan remains one of the most challenging operational contexts in the world with extremely poor infrastructure, insecurity and more than half of the population in dire need of humanitarian assistance. During the seasonal rain, 60 per cent of the roads become impassable. In 2019, unprecedented flooding exacerbated an already difficult situation. Yet, UNICEF was able to reach women and children in need, including in hard-to-reach areas through the integrated rapid response mechanism and the use of water and air assets. The dry season prepositioning of supplies prevented pipeline breaches and a substantial decrease in hostilities eased access (see page 38).

BANGLADESH

With no resolution in sight to the Rohingya refugee crisis, undocumented Myanmar nationals remained stuck in the world's largest refugee camp complex in Bangladesh in 2019. The longevity of the crisis prompted UNICEF to find a sustainable alternative to the non-durable tents used as learning centres, with a large-scale plan to replace over 3,000 of those put in motion towards the end of the year (see page 12).

CENTRAL SAHEL

The scale of armed violence and the harsh effects of climate change have severely disrupted the lives of 4.3 million children in Burkina Faso, Mali and Niger. Chronic food insecurity and forced displacement created significant barriers for children and families trying to access essential supplies in Central Sahel. With over half a million children under five years of age at risk of acute malnutrition, nutrition supplies comprised the bulk of the UNICEF supply response.

Scaling up supply response for global health emergencies

This retrospective highlights the UNICEF supply response to the major disease outbreaks since 2014 – from Ebola to Zika to the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic – and how these complex health emergencies have informed the organization’s preparedness and response efforts for supplies and logistics.

There is no one-size-fits-all approach when it comes to responding to health emergencies: each response is unique, based on disease characteristics, magnitude of the spread and the operational context. UNICEF works to respond to the complexities of each health emergency with real-time innovation, while continually recalibrating and building on lessons learned to strengthen response capacity and inform future preparedness efforts.

When the Ebola outbreak in West Africa was declared an International Public Health Emergency on 8 August 2014, the world had limited knowledge of the product specifications required to protect health workers against the virulent disease.

Real-time learning was therefore critical. In just two months, UNICEF, in close coordination with partners such as Médecins Sans Frontières (MSF), the World Health Organization (WHO) and industry, helped define quality standards, identify areas for innovation and product improvements, determine the supply needs and accelerate procurement to support the evolving Ebola response.

A major aspect of the UNICEF Ebola response focused on establishing Community Care Centres (CCCs) to isolate cases and provide palliative care. UNICEF worked with partners and communities to equip the CCCs with protective personal equipment (PPE) and supplies, including tents, tarpaulins, medicines, chlorine, family hygiene kits and water, sanitation and hygiene (WASH) kits.

SPOTLIGHT ON REAL-TIME INNOVATION

At the onset of the Ebola outbreak in 2014, the PPE available on the market did not offer sufficient protection against the virus, and real-time innovation was needed. UNICEF worked with partners and industry to develop, standardize and scale up production of Ebola-resistant protective equipment, including masks, gloves and coveralls, for use by front line workers and burial teams. UNICEF also negotiated lower prices for PPE through long-term arrangements.

By mid-2015, the Ebola response became the largest UNICEF supply operation to date, with more than 8,000 metric tons of supplies delivered to the affected countries.

Many lessons emerged among the global community about how the response to future health emergencies could be improved. Building on these lessons, UNICEF established an internal Health Emergency Preparedness Initiative (HEPI) to strengthen the organization’s response capacity, in coordination with partners.

As part of HEPI, UNICEF developed guidance on supplies for the prevention, detection and clinical management of critical infectious diseases to support countries in their outbreak response efforts. UNICEF also maintains emergency stockpile of essential health supplies in its global supply hub in Copenhagen, Denmark, for immediate supply to countries if needed as well as supporting countries develop preparedness plans.

Market shaping activities are a key aspect of the organization’s HEPI work of UNICEF. In instances where products do not exist to meet a specific need, UNICEF works with partners to accelerate research and development (R&D) of fit-for-purpose products and champion strategic procurement to create healthy, competitive and sustainable markets.

For example, when WHO declared a Public Health Emergency in response to clusters of birth defects associated with mosquito-borne Zika virus transmission in February 2016, the only available diagnostic test required centralized laboratory processing. Samples had to be sent from health centres to specialized laboratories, which meant delays in obtaining the test results. UNICEF identified an urgent need for a rapid test at the point of care (POC) to support programmatic interventions and link families and affected children to appropriate care and services.

To address this gap, UNICEF commenced work to incentivize the development of a POC test for the Zika virus and accelerate its availability. The first step in this effort was the creation of a Target Product Profile (TPP) to define the characteristics of desired diagnostic tests. The TPP was created and published jointly with WHO and the Pan-American Health Organization (PAHO) to guide manufacturers’ research and development efforts.

In 2017, with funding from the United States Agency for International Development (USAID), UNICEF launched an Advance Purchase Commitment (APC) for Zika diagnostics. This innovative procurement and financing mechanism incentivized development of POC tests by guaranteeing procurement of a certain quantity of product from manufacturers, de-risking product development. The first of its kind for UNICEF and USAID, the APC was designed and administered by UNICEF via a two-phased tender: the first phase focused on products already in development but soon-to-be commercialized, while the second phase focused on more innovative products (e.g., multiplex designs that could differentiate diagnoses between Zika virus and other arboviruses, such as Dengue and Chikungunya).

Nine-month-old Danilo, who has Congenital Zika Syndrome, laughs while being tickled by his brothers Denis, 13, and Dylan, 6, in the inner courtyard of their home in Guatemala City, Guatemala.

Following the Zika diagnostic tenders, UNICEF partnered with the London School of Hygiene & Tropical Medicine to validate the products. Now complete, UNICEF is able to report that the APC and associated validation efforts catalyzed more rapid development and availability of innovative and low-cost POC diagnostics that test for either Zika alone or Zika and other arboviruses. Three innovative products are now available.

With a new Ebola outbreak emerging in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC) in August 2018, UNICEF built on lessons learned from the 2014–2016 outbreak in West Africa and was able to deploy prepositioned supplies to support the response, including novel diagnostics.

Following the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo's announcement of a new Ebola outbreak in 2018, UNICEF immediately mobilized its teams to help contain the spread of the disease and protect children

In addition, a new investigational Ebola vaccine became available and was used in the response under 'compassionate use' while awaiting regulatory approval. Accordingly, UNICEF issued a tender in late 2019 aiming to secure access to a vaccine stockpile of 500,000 doses of Ebola vaccine for the period 2020–2025, with possible extension through 2027, with financial support from Gavi, the Vaccine Alliance.

With the Ebola outbreak in DRC still ongoing, a new health emergency challenge emerged: In the span of a few weeks, in late 2019 and early 2020, COVID-19 escalated from a localized outbreak in China into a pandemic affecting nearly the entire world. As the outbreak worsened, demand for supplies to combat the virus sharply increased, leading to market constraints, pricing volatility and logistics barriers.

The pandemic soon became the most complex supply and logistics context in the history of UNICEF. The organization fully mobilized its supply operations to navigate these unprecedented challenges to support countries in their efforts to fight the pandemic. With the situation evolving rapidly, flexibility and adaptability were key components of the UNICEF response.

UNICEF investment in HEPI emergency supplies enabled the organization to be in a better position to respond immediately to the COVID-19 emergency. For example, the pre-positioning of PPE supplies in the supply hub in Copenhagen helped to make them rapidly available to countries at the onset of the outbreak. Previous market shaping efforts of UNICEF, such as the Zika APC, are also helping to contribute to and inform global efforts to accelerate the development of vaccines, diagnostics and treatment for COVID-19.

The COVID-19 pandemic not only represents a health risk in itself, but it also has severe secondary impacts on the well-being of children, threatening to reverse gains made in child health over the last two decades.

These far-reaching and potentially devastating consequences demand the greatest scale-up efforts in the history of UNICEF. Moving into the second half of 2020 and beyond, UNICEF will continue to adapt its work in close collaboration with partners to support countries in their efforts to respond to COVID-19, and their long-term efforts to rebuild, recover and put in place the systems that children and their families need for the future.

Responding with supplies to Cyclones Idai and Kenneth

For the first time in recorded history, two powerful cyclones struck Mozambique in the same season, causing widespread devastation. Despite the logistics challenges caused by the cyclones, UNICEF was able to reach children and communities with nutrition, medical and WASH supplies as well as vaccines, including nearly 900,000 doses of oral cholera vaccine

In the days leading up to Cyclone Idai's predicted landfall on 14 March 2019, UNICEF quickly mobilized to prepare for a rapid response in its aftermath. This included reviewing contingency stock availability, prepositioning supplies and confirming the validity of local long-term arrangements (LTAs) for goods and logistics services to facilitate rapid local procurement.

As the storm lifted and floodwaters receded, the widespread devastation became apparent. Some 1.85 million people in Mozambique were affected by the destruction, including 1 million children. The port city of Beira was among the locations hardest hit. The storm destroyed much of the city's infrastructure and caused hundreds of deaths.

The scope of the emergency was far more significant than anticipated and additional shipments of water and sanitation, nutrition, shelter, health and education supplies were quickly mobilized. As the UNICEF warehouse in Beira was also badly damaged, temporary tents were quickly set up to provide 800 square metres for safe storage of supplies.

With municipal water systems disrupted by the storm, providing safe drinking water to prevent cholera outbreaks was a priority. The first supplies to arrive included water purification solutions, facilitated by the Provincial Directorate of Health.

This was followed by additional WASH supplies and a charter flight with nearly 900,000 doses of oral cholera vaccine from the Global Oral Cholera Vaccine stockpile to support the cholera vaccination campaign by the Government of Mozambique.

Nutrition was also a concern due to the disruption of food supply, with an estimated 67,500 children projected to need treatment for acute malnutrition. Charter flights with nutrition commodities were quickly dispatched, delivering High Energy Biscuits, cartons of rehydration solution and therapeutic milk and food.

With a second cyclone on the horizon, similar preparedness measures were quickly put in place, including the prepositioning of key supplies and the deployment of an emergency team to Cabo Delgado province.

Cyclone Kenneth made landfall on 25 April, nearly a thousand kilometres north of where Cyclone Idai struck, and was the strongest tropical cyclone to hit Mozambique in known history. Additional supplies, such as essential medical supplies and water treatment chemicals, were quickly sent to the area to support the response.

As much as possible, supplies for the dual response were procured from the immediate region to reduce shipment times and help strengthen local markets – about 20 per cent of overall procurement for this response effort was local. For example, ready-to-use therapeutic food (RUTF) was sourced from Kenya and Madagascar, water treatment chemicals from South Africa and WASH items from Mozambique.

Local procurement also promotes resilience and a continuum between humanitarian and development efforts. The two consecutive natural disasters posed many challenges. However, harmonized efforts among partners and close collaboration with local authorities and community-based organizations were key to establishing outreach on the ground, distributing supplies and rebuilding infrastructure.

Strategic prepositioning of supplies in South Sudan

Through strategic prepositioning in South Sudan during the dry season, an estimated average cost-avoidance of $5 million per year is achieved.

Delivering supplies by road is challenging during the rainy season in South Sudan

Since independence in 2011, South Sudan has been affected by internal conflict. This has resulted in a highly volatile and complex environment, making it difficult to reach children. The country has only 192 kilometres of paved roads and 4 asphalt airstrips. Although transportation is available along rivers, boats are old and unreliable, and the security situation means timing is unpredictable. Road transport is undertaken in convoy for security reasons, and, for approximately six months of the year, up to 60 per cent of the country is inaccessible due to heavy rains.

Against this background, a system of dry season prepositioning (DSP) was designed. Critical supplies such as medicines, education materials and therapeutic food are moved across the country during the dry season and placed in strategic hubs. This ensures that the supplies remain available during the rainy season for both emergency response and regular programming. In activating the DSP, the South Sudan Country Office ensures that the population continues to have access to critical supplies.

Through the implementation of DSP from 2017 to 2019, there was no break in the pipeline of critical supplies, an increase from 82 to 98 per cent in the use of road transport for supplies distribution, a reduction of CO² emissions by an average of 800 tonnes per year and an estimated average cost-avoidance of $5 million per annum.

Scaling up construction in Yemen

A large construction portfolio in Yemen is helping rebuild social infrastructure. The plan focuses on rehabilitating and constructing new schools, classrooms, water networks, health facilities, UNICEF premises and warehouses for storing medical supplies.

The crisis in Yemen remains the largest emergency globally, with more than 24 million people in need of humanitarian assistance. With attacks and military use of 407 education and 158 health facilities, and only one third of Yemen's population connected to a piped water network, many essential social services have been compromised. In addition, as many as 2,000 schools are unfit for use, because they are either damaged, being used in the fighting or sheltering displaced families. As a result, many other schools are overcrowded as they accommodate additional students who have been displaced from unsafe locations.

As a long-term approach to restore essential services for children in Yemen, UNICEF embarked on a strong construction plan. UNICEF Supply Division worked closely with the Yemen Country Office and the Regional Office in Amman, Jordan, to boost efforts in rehabilitating and rebuilding damaged or destroyed structures at a cost of $20 million in 2019, with $155 million planned for 2020.

Given the massive scale of the project – larger than anything ever done before in Yemen – a new way of working was necessary. UNICEF Supply Division undertook the management of the logistics and supplier contracting from its supply hub in Copenhagen, Denmark, bringing its global experience in supply operations to Yemen to scale up local efforts.

First, a new construction unit that includes engineering experts with experience in managing similar projects was established.

Second, contracts with qualified construction and design companies were developed to support the delivery. These partners will support the delivery of construction materials; rehabilitation of damaged windows, doors and roofing; and designing buildings that incorporate technical requirements, like cold storage of vaccines, and accessibility needs for children with disabilities, like wheelchair ramps.

Third, a new operational process was put in place to streamline efforts and allow the Yemen Country Office to effectively and timely deliver on construction commitments. Finally, a robust implementation plan was put in place to organize the various construction projects within the portfolio based on priorities and timelines.

These proactive efforts demonstrate how UNICEF transfers its knowledge, experience and learnings from one office to support another.

With a comprehensive plan now in place, the next steps are to complete the activities already initiated in 2019 – selecting locations, completing architectural designs and awarding contracts – and then begin the construction of the much-needed facilities for children.

The UNICEF Supply Community behind our results

The UNICEF global supply hub is located in Copenhagen, Denmark, but the backbone of the organization's supply and logistics function is its Supply Community. Spanning the globe, our colleagues work together with the common goal of achieving results for children.

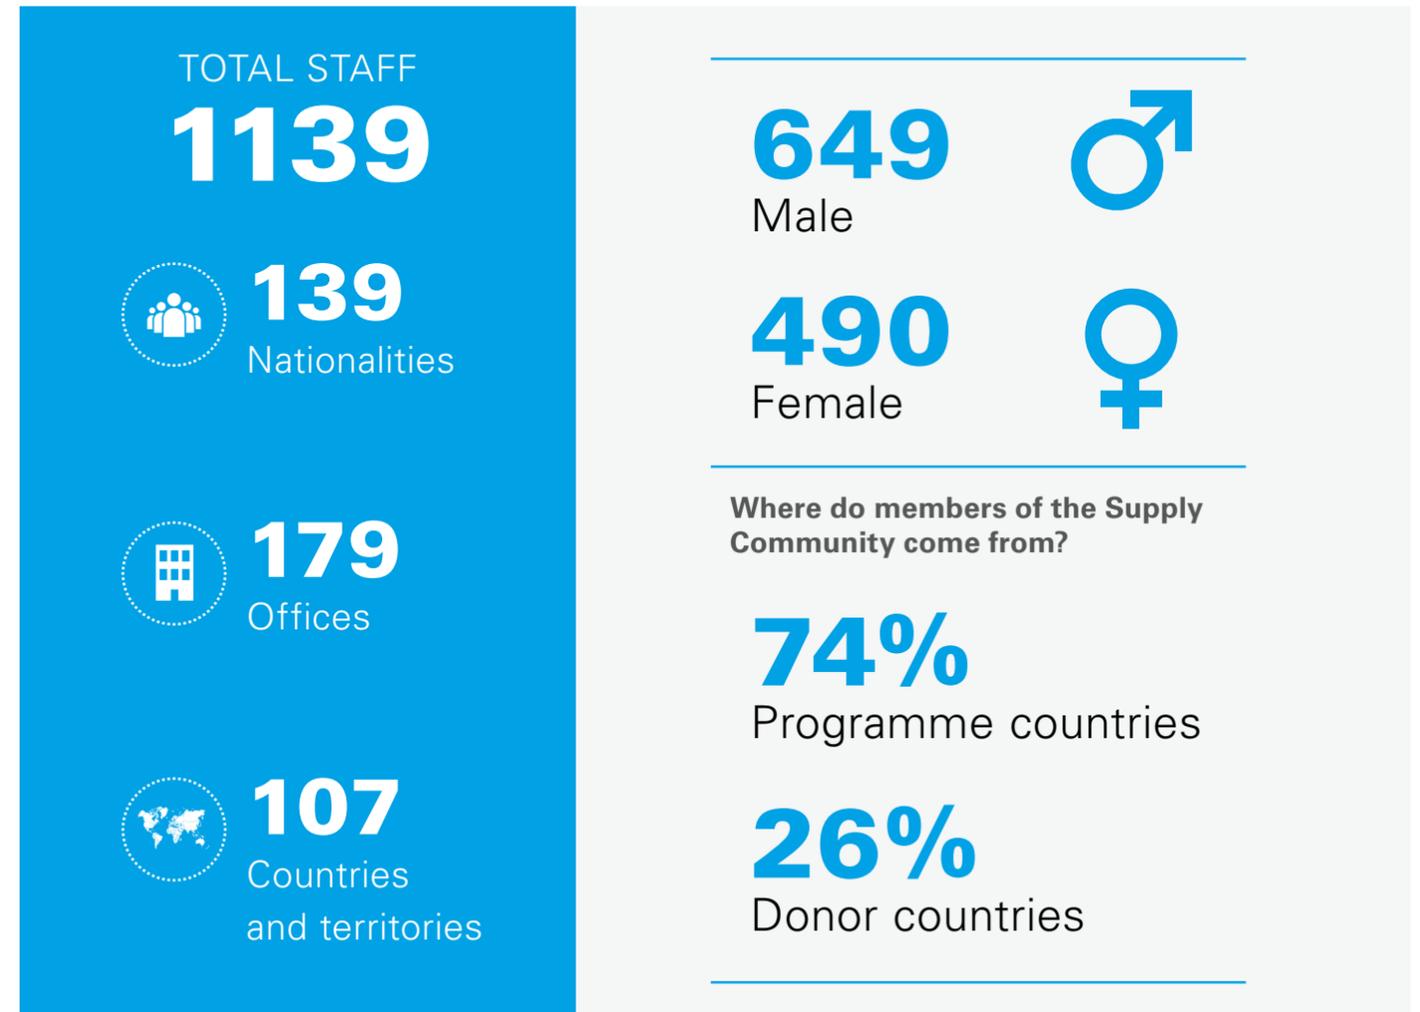

The Supply workforce in UNICEF is based on a strong sense of belonging, a shared expertise and a fierce commitment to getting supplies to children so they can have an equitable chance at life in a safe and clean environment.

To maximize impact, members of the Supply Community are guided by the UNICEF Global Supply Strategies, bringing across-the-board expertise and substantial professional experience to all stages of the supply chain – from procurement and contracting to transport, warehousing and emergency preparedness and response. It is the culture of continuous professional development and knowledge exchange that allows UNICEF to bring innovations, tools and strategies to scale.

The collective effort of the Supply Community through joint problem solving, continuous improvement, innovation and collaboration made the 2019 achievements reported in this volume possible. This spirit will continue to nurture the development of more and better ways of working as we scale up our impact to help realize children's rights.

ERIKA ABS

Logistics Assistant
Supply Division

I was deployed on the first wave surge capacity team from Supply Division to respond to the Cyclone Idai emergency in Mozambique. As a Logistics Officer, I was responsible for all logistics operations in Beira, such as the coordination of incoming shipments, warehousing, in-country transport and distribution. I also collaborated closely with programme colleagues in defining logistics interventions to urgently meet programmatic needs in the field.

A moment I will never forget was seeing the tremendous destruction with my own eyes when I first arrived in Beira. The scale of the damage to the city's water and sanitation infrastructure, coupled with its dense population, made cholera a major concern. On 2 April 2019, 900,000 doses of oral cholera vaccine procured by UNICEF and WHO arrived at Beira Airport. Within 24 hours, these vaccines began reaching people in need. In the midst of all the challenges during the vaccination campaign, I saw a little boy, the same age as my youngest son, receiving the vaccine at a health centre and I could not control my tears. I felt so happy and grateful for the job we were doing there. Of course, you witness unspeakable tragedy, misery and experience personal frustrations at not being able to do more, but amazing achievements and moments like this make it all worthwhile.

During the UNICEF response to Cyclones Idai and Kenneth, I was the focal point for all surge teams regarding logistics activities, including registering all requests for supplies from partners, performing all transactions related to the movement of supplies and clearing the backlog between physical and online records. Knowing that the supplies I was requesting were relieving the needs of so many children and their families was gratifying. It kept me awake and committed every day. Visiting the sites wearing UNICEF gear, I witnessed how our presence as UNICEF was meaningful for the population. What I learned through this experience is that UNICEF is a critical partner to governments during humanitarian contexts. UNICEF is agile, well connected to partners and suppliers and we always operate in a way that confirms our vision to guarantee the best results for children, whether it be in the areas of sanitation, health or education.

It really is a 24/7 job of coordination with many stakeholders. Our team's work is directly related to the implementation of the immunization programmes, creating an impact on sustainable improvement to children's lives and realization of their right to health. Last year the programme and supply team worked together to achieve critical procurement and delivery of measles and rubella virus vaccines for the nationwide campaign, despite a shortage of funds. This was made possible through implementation of VII and ad-hoc pre-financing in collaboration with Supply Division (see story on page 18). At the end of the day, my work is my passion. I believe that hard work pays off when I think about the immeasurable impact of immunization programmes saving millions of lives. I feel very fortunate to be able to serve the children of Bangladesh.

As part of the mWIMS (see story on page 14) core team, my role is to provide field input to ensure that the tool is the right fit-for-purpose from a warehouse user's point of view. As a Supply and Logistics Specialist, I have the chance to see a large variety of in-country logistics set-ups in many countries. Beyond ensuring field input in the team, I am also one of the two main testers of the mobile app, gathering user feedback and implementing existing and future flows. The most rewarding part of the project is the excitement and relief that can be read on the users' faces when they get to grips with the app's various capabilities as well as when programme colleagues hear what mWIMS will bring to them in terms of improved programme visibility. The mWIMS project brings faster, more accurate and clearer real-time visibility of goods stored in UNICEF-controlled warehouses. The improved programme visibility brought by the project results in time and efficiency gains that enhance the distribution of life-saving goods to children in need, particularly the most vulnerable.

JENIFER KIATTU

Supply Specialist
Kenya

My main areas of responsibility are management of supply and logistics risks, emergency preparedness and response and health systems strengthening. I manage the supply end user monitoring function in the Kenya Country Office. The most rewarding part of my work is when the technical support to colleagues or partners is actualized into tangible results or when risks identified are eliminated or minimized. During field monitoring, it is also very encouraging to see supplies being used by the children who need them most. In 2019, I saw my work scaling up impact for children through continued support to the Government in health systems strengthening initiatives that will one day lead to an integrated approach in management of health supplies. The integration of supply chains is the means to focus investments in the supply chain system, whether it's in the improvement of infrastructure, distribution channels or staff capacity enhancement at every level. This will enable efficiencies to be gained as well as cost savings and visibility to the end user – ultimately providing an enabling environment for sustainability through commodity availability and reaching the hardest to reach areas and children.

DILARA AYAZOVA

Programme Officer
Turkmenistan

In my role, I coordinate the procurement of vaccines, micronutrients and cold chain equipment for the Government's immunization and fortification programmes. I also strengthen the national capacity in planning, selection, delivery and distribution of these supplies and services to sustain long-lasting impact for children. By working together with Government partners, I ensure that the 160,000 children born annually in Turkmenistan and thousands of young children enjoy their right to free access to vaccination. With the support of the effective UNICEF procurement services, the Government of Turkmenistan was able to decrease the mortality rates, increase the immunization coverage for all children and introduce new vaccines to scale up impact for children. These interventions also result in increased economic return, contributing to the Sustainable Development Goals and allowing children to enjoy their rights and develop to the fullest potential. The most rewarding part of my work is to know that my contribution helps sustain the highest vaccination rates in the country, thus, protecting all children of Turkmenistan, including my grandchildren, from 14 vaccine preventable diseases.

Working in Yemen, the world's largest humanitarian intervention, can be intriguing, challenging and often unpredictable. The Yemen humanitarian response is supply chain driven, the country receives an average of 80 x 40 ft containers and four charters of supplies each month. To ensure prompt deliveries, we initially depended on shipping supplies via Djibouti and then onto dhows to Hodeida/Aden and onward shipments to partners or the Sana'a main warehouse by road. In August 2019, another supply chain corridor was opened via Salalah, Oman, allowing shipments by road to Sana'a – but also with challenges, requiring crossing two governmental territories. Running such a huge logistics operation in a protracted emergency requires a dedicated 24/7 staff at all entry and receiving points. This could not be achieved without the leadership and collective efforts of the Yemen Country Office operations team and management's support. Without their unrelenting efforts, UNICEF would not be able to ensure that there is a constant flow of programme supplies for the children of Yemen. Viva UNICEF Yemen Supply and Logistics team!

Strategic collaboration

UNICEF engages with its partners to communicate needs, draw on expertise and share information, technical knowledge and contracts to ensure that the right supplies reach children at the right time.

Together, UNICEF and partners carry out a variety of supply interventions, such as product innovation, global and local procurement, market shaping and strengthening sustainable procurement practices.

This section includes examples of these collaborations in 2019.

COLLABORATIVE APPROACH TO HUMANITARIAN CASH TRANSFER PROGRAMMING AND OPERATIONAL EXECUTION

In response to the joint statement of the Executive Directors of UNICEF, WFP, UNHCR and UNOCHA to collaborate on humanitarian cash transfers, UNICEF Supply Division, DFAM, and OED Legal and EMOPS, in collaboration with UNHCR and WFP, jointly developed global guidance for collaborative procurement for humanitarian cash transfers (HCT). The initiative has led to a more strategic approach to HCT programming and execution at the Country Offices. Additionally, the United Nations Common Cash System (UNCCS) was established to coordinate the execution of the collaboration. Seven pilot countries – Afghanistan, Burkina Faso, Ecuador, the Central African Republic, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Libya and Yemen – were selected to define opportunities on joint programming and procurement for financial service providers. The first joint procurement exercise was initiated in Ecuador in response to the migrants from Venezuela. Discussions are currently ongoing in other pilot countries – e.g. the Burkina Faso and Libya Country Offices are in discussions with UNHCR and WFP to piggyback on their long-term arrangements (LTAs) for Financial Service Provider. Subsequently, the approach will be cascaded to other Country Offices.

INNOVATION

Disability-Friendly Latrine

UNICEF and partners developed a modular component that fits on latrines to be dispatched during the first phase of an emergency response, providing fundamental support for persons with disabilities living in camps or settlements to safely use sanitation services. The Danish Handicap Organization was involved in the technical review, while UNHCR and Save the Children were involved in the field testing. Another innovation UNICEF developed in 2019 is the High Performance Tent (see page 10).

Vaccine Innovation Prioritization Strategy

In 2017, UNICEF together with PATH, the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, WHO and Gavi, the Vaccine Alliance, launched VIPS, with the aim to drive vaccine delivery innovation to better meet country needs and support Alliance goals on immunization coverage and equity. In 2019, the first phase of VIPS resulted in a short list of nine innovations for further analysis in the second phase of VIPS. In 2020, three to four of these innovations will be prioritized for focused advancement or support by Gavi.

Global Polio Eradication Initiative – nOPV

UNICEF is participating in a cross functional working group under the GPEI with the purpose to enable a rapid development and effective roll out of a novel polio vaccine, expected to reduce – and possibly eliminate – risks of reseeding the live attenuated virus. The vaccine will be part of the global polio stockpile, managed by UNICEF, and expected to be deployed prior to national licensure and WHO prequalification under the WHO Emergency Use Listing Procedure for outbreak response only.

Vaccine MicroArray Patches

UNICEF is collaborating with partners to accelerate the development of Vaccine MicroArray Patches (VMAPs), an innovation that in the future may increase vaccination coverage by lowering immunization barriers. This includes participation in the Measles and Rubella Micro Array Patch Working Group (MR-MAP-WG) and co-publishing of the MR-MAP Target Product Profile with WHO.

UNICEF-LED TENDERS

Freight forwarding

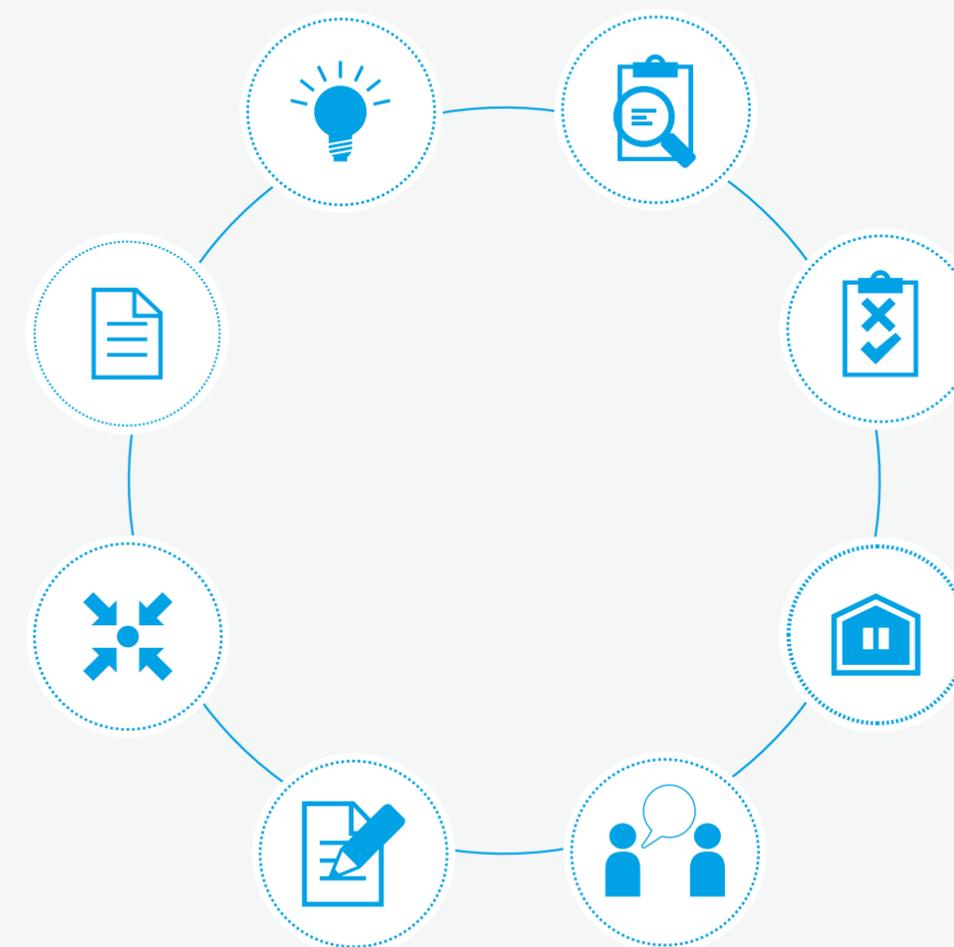

As the lead agency for Provision of Third Party Logistics – Freight Forwarding Services, UNICEF manages the contracts it had awarded to five leading multinational companies in 2017, providing guidance to at least eight other United Nations agencies on their utilization and leveraging the terms obtained in the last tender. In 2019, UNICEF supported IOM and UNPD to start using the contracts and initiated partnership discussions with key global air carriers to ensure improved rates and priority booking for humanitarian cargo.

JOINT TENDERING EXERCISE WITH OTHER UNITED NATIONS AGENCIES

The joint tendering exercise brings the forecasted volumes of different United Nations agencies together, ensuring agencies have a better position when addressing industries and influence on the market. The exercise helps markets and suppliers to provide attractive offers and prices, eliminating redundant tendering processes for the same commodities to different agencies. An example of this exercise is the successful UNICEF and UNFPA joint tender for vocational training of medical simulators, wherein UNFPA led the commercial side and UNICEF the technical one.

SHARED SERVICES AND PIGGYBACKING ON LTAs

To reduce parallel processes and transaction costs, UNICEF shares its LTAs with other United Nations agencies, and similarly uses other agencies' contracts – e.g. UNFPA, UNFPA, UN Secretariat, UNHCR, UNDP and WFP – for goods and services, such as IEC Telecoms-satellite, Danimax-VHF/UHF radio equipment, textiles and visibility items and Lynda.com as well as Core Relief items, including tarpaulin, sleeping mats, blankets, kitchen sets, multipurpose storage units and prefabs. United Nations agencies utilized UNICEF contracts for the following goods and services: laboratory services, inspection services, office stationery and furniture, flak jackets and helmets and light weight multipurpose tents.

INDUSTRY CONSULTATIONS

The Vaccine Industry Consultation

The annual Vaccine Industry Consultation (VIC) featured a pre-tender meeting on Penta/Hexavalent vaccines in addition to tenders in connection with routine immunization as well as emergency response stockpiles. Other topics discussed included regulatory requirements, updates to the International Guidelines on the Shipment of Vaccines, vaccine security, supply chain strengthening and the Humanitarian Mechanism. A total of 118 participants attended the VIC, including 92 suppliers and 26 partners.

Business seminars

To broaden the supply base and improve competition, UNICEF and other United Nations organizations jointly held business seminars with the United States Department of Commerce as well as the US/UN Business Seminar and EU/UN Business Seminar.

QUALITY ASSURANCE

Quality assurance of key products

As one of the leading procurers of long-lasting insecticidal nets (LLINs) for children and families, UNICEF collaborated with the WHO Vector Control Prequalification Programme for LLIN and Indoor Residual Spraying, actively supporting eight manufacturer site inspections.

STANDARDIZATION AND HARMONIZATION

Harmonized Cash Transfer

UNICEF led the contracting process for the United Nations Harmonized Cash Transfer (HACT) initiative, through which 10 strategically regional long-term arrangements (LTAs) were awarded in 2019. The LTAs were published in collaboration with UNFPA, UNDP and FAO.

EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS

Humanitarian Mechanism

The Humanitarian Mechanism (HM), launched in 2017 by WHO, UNICEF, MSF and Save the Children – to increase access to affordable and timely supply of vaccines for use in Humanitarian Emergencies – has to date reached approximately 647,000 children with doses of Pneumococcal Conjugate Vaccine (PCV). In 2019, WHO as the lead agency on behalf of HM partners, reached out to industry for further commitments. In response, two members of industry confirmed their commitment to improve access.

Emergency stockpiles

UNICEF collaborates with various partners to ensure timely access to supplies in response to emergencies. In 2019, UNICEF maintained a stockpile of 200 material items valued at approximately $10.4 million.

UNICEF Supply partnerships

UNICEF is committed to accelerating the rights of children through supply and logistics. This can only be achieved in cooperation and partnerships with other humanitarian and development organizations and governments, and with the expertise and guidance of academia, businesses and civil society. This list includes UNICEF Supply Division's key partners in 2019.

Savings overview 2019

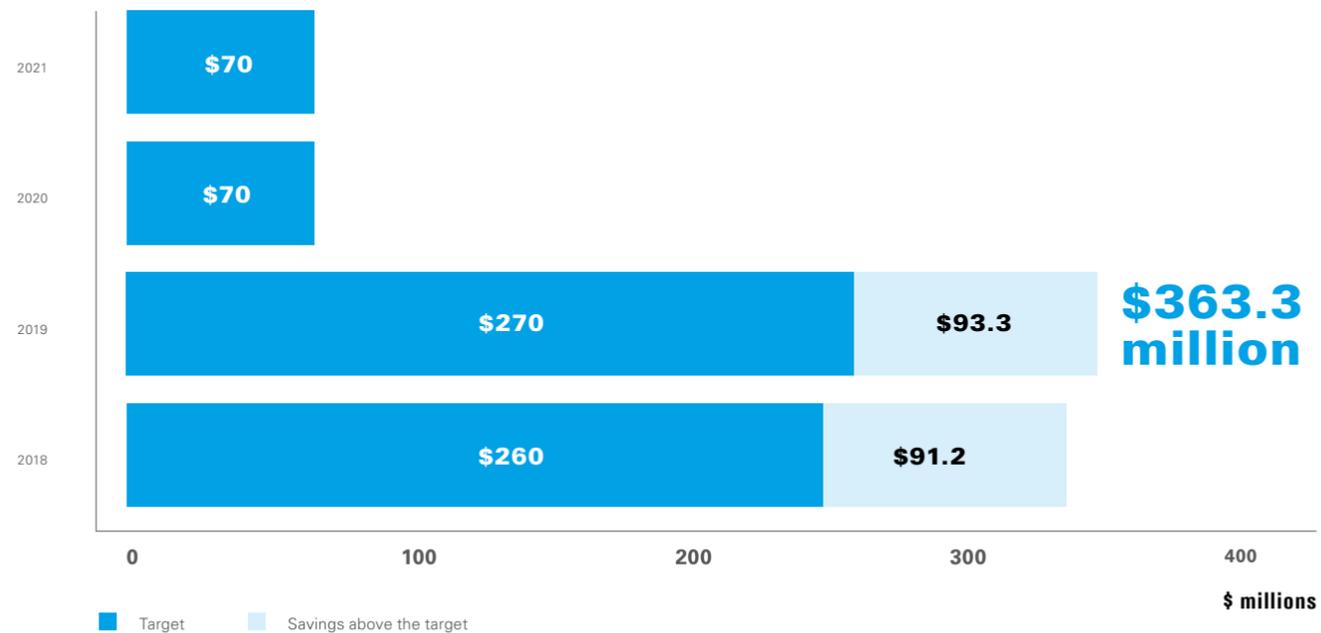

The UNICEF Supply function achieved a total of $363.3 million worth of savings for UNICEF donors and partners in 2019, exceeding its target for the year by 35 per cent or more than $93 million.

UNICEF used strategic procurement, price and information transparency, special contracting terms and multi-year arrangements, along with partner collaborations (e.g. joint forecasting, coordinated procurement, etc.), to provide longer-term visibility on levels of demand.

This enables suppliers to plan and scale up production, increasing the availability of affordable supplies for every child. In only two years, UNICEF exceeded its projected $670 million in price savings over the period of 2018-2021 by $44.5 million, achieving savings of $363.3 million in 2019 alone. To ensure sustained availability and accessibility of strategic supplies for children, UNICEF focuses on a holistic procurement impact, considering price savings and, increasingly, other value elements such as social and environmental impact.
